1. [redacted] talk at the CDU/CSU headquarters in East Berlin on the directives issued on 27 June by the Press Office of the Minister President. According to these directives, the birthday of Walter Ulbricht on 30 June was to be mentioned only in passing by the GDR press, in view of the importance of the international problem to be solved in international talks. [redacted] these directives had been given for purely tactical reasons in order to withdraw Ulbricht for a while from the front line of public attention. On the other hand, Goetting wondered why Ulbricht was spreading the news among the SED that, the present SED régime would not be abandoned by the USSR at future international negotiations.

2. [] a crisis had broken out at the SED Central Committee around Ulbricht. Ulbricht had repeatedly violated orders given by the Soviet Communist party, had neglected to comply with desires of the Soviet Embassy in Berlin, and had negated important intentions of Soviet diplomacy. [] however, [] all this did not yet indicate the certain downfall of Ulbricht. The fact that Franz Dählem had returned to the Central Committee showed, however, that Ulbricht's position had been undermined. [] Franz Dählem will play a much more important role in the future all-German elections than Ulbricht. The Soviets had kept Dählem in reserve for this occasion.
